Union Square ATMs targeted in scam

Prosecutors charged three Canadians yesterday with stealing Chase Bank customers' debit card information in a data-theft scam involving hidden ATM cameras.

Nikolai Ivanov, 31, Dimitar Stamatov, 28, and Iordan Ivanov, 24, used an illegal "skimming" device to obtain customers' bank identification, and then used those stolen debit card numbers for a $285,000 spending spree, prosecutors allege.

The defendants allegedly drove from Quebec to plant 11 skimming devices at four ATMs around Union Square, stealing data from 1,500 ATM cards and buying things like food, electronics and gas during trips to Arizona, Illinois and Canada.

The defendants allegedly slid a green plastic device into the slot where users dip their ATM cards. The device then obtained card numbers by reading the magnetic strip, while a hidden camera recorded users' PINs. METRO/AB

New flooding risk predicted for city

New report says flooding threat in future years worse than previously thought Subways may fill with water in just 40 minutes, experts warn

Within decades, New York subway tunnels could be flooded in under an hour during a major storm, according to a new report released yesterday.

Another storm like Tropical Storm Irene could cripple the subway system and flood JFK and LaGuardia airports, predicted researchers from Columbia University's Earth Institute, Cornell University and the City University of New York in the report.

By 2020, the sea levels around Manhattan could rise by 10 inches. Researchers warned of a possible four-foot rise in sea levels by 2080, if the glaciers continue to melt at their current rate, the scientists said.

That would jeopardize the entire New York City subway system, they warned, putting it at risk of extreme flooding every 10 years. Right now the system is at risk of extreme flooding every 100 years.

New York City has long been reported as at risk for flooding, but yesterday's report crystallized just how quickly low-lying areas of the city, such as nearly all of Lower Manhattan, could be underwater.

"After 40 minutes of rain the entire subway system could be underwater," Columbia scientist Klaus Jacob said in the report, commissioned by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority.

The temperature in New York has warmed 2.4 degrees Fahrenheit in the last 40 years, which is more than twice the global average.

What to expect

Researchers predict the following will happen:

- By 2020, nearly 96,000 people on Long Beach could be at risk of flooding.
- By mid-2020, the sea levels around Manhattan and Long Island could rise by 10 inches.
- Extreme rain could also put the drinking water system at risk.
- Researchers said the MTA should invest in more pumps to vacuum water out of the system, and barriers that would keep water from rushing in through sidewalk grates. METRO/AB

Protesters say they are ready to get arrested NYPD, MTA and Homeland Security forces stand at the ready

Protesters say they are prepared to be arrested en masse for their cause today.

Approximately 25 Occupy Wall Street members met at 60 Wall Street yesterday to discuss their willingness to be arrested when they take to the streets this morning as part of their International Day of Action.

The protesters will attempt to march to the New York Stock Exchange at 7 a.m. On their way, they say they will "confront Wall Street with the stories of people on the frontlines of economic injustice," according to OccupyWallSt.org.

"I think a lot of people are going to come out violent. Bloomberg and the cops started something they didn't want to get started."
DEMETRIUS WYMAN, PROTESTER

The NYPD and the MTA are preparing for the worst. Last night more than 20 NYPD squad cars gathered at Battery Park to prepare for the protesters' march. Department of Homeland Security vehicles and two NYPD mobile command units — vans carrying officers and police technology — were also on hand.

"The protesters are calling for a massive event aimed at disrupting major parts of the city," Deputy Mayor Howard Wolfson said yesterday.

"Everything that we have seen and heard suggests that we may have tens of thousands of people tomorrow protesting," he added.

Comptroller under heat after fundraiser arrested

Man who allegedly raised funds for Liu arrested for fraud ◐ Might dim Liu's mayoral hopes ◐ Under pressure to explain donations as feds probe

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Liu's hopes to be mayor could be dashed by allegations of campaign finance fraud.

A fundraiser for city Comptroller John Liu, one of the names often floated as a contender to be the next New York City mayor, was arrested yesterday in the midst of a federal investigation into his campaign fundraising.

Xing Wu Pan, 46, was arrested and charged with attempted wire fraud and conspiracy.

The New York Times reported that many people listed as having donated to Liu did not remember giving money.

This prompted allegations that people might have signed others' names to donations, so that they could donate more than the legal limit.

Officials say Pan was a bundler for Wu, or a person who gathers contributions from a group of people. He's accused of funneling illegal contributions to Liu's campaign.

According to the Times, Pan helped connect a person who wanted to donate $16,000 to Liu, which is more than three times the legal limit.

In a statement he gave to the Times, Liu said, "If it is true then the conduct was clearly wrong and my campaign was not told the truth."

Ex-broker charged in $200K scam

A 24-year-old ex-stockbroker working out of his Brooklyn home stole more than $200,000 from unsuspecting victims, Brooklyn District Attorney Charles Hynes said yesterday, after announcing the indictment of Boris Shteyngart for running a securities scam.

Shteyngart was a legit stockbroker until 2009, when he was stripped of his brokerage license for misconduct. That's when, says the DA's office, he started cold-calling people across the nation. He said he called them in the past with a great deal they missed out on and offered "a second chance" to invest with him.

Two duped

Before he was arrested, Shteyngart allegedly stole $142,000 from a dentist in Missouri and took $10,000 from an 84-year-old man in Queens, nearly wiping out his life savings, said Hynes.

He instructed his victims to send checks to him, made out to "BORI," which he said stood for Bank of Rhode Island. Shteyngart simply added an "S" and his last name to the checks and cashed them himself, said Hynes.

Bloody train fight on the L erupts after spitting

WORLD STAR HIPHOP

BUSHWICK. A man who scolded a group for spitting on the subway ended up beaten and bloodied, according to the police. The NYPD is looking for three men who allegedly attacked another man on a Queens-bound L train earlier this month. The incident happened Nov. 8, just after 2 a.m., as the train left the Myrtle-Wyckoff stop. In a video that captures the fight, the victim, a 25-year-old man, scolded three other men for spitting on the train. He was then attacked by the three, one of whom was shirtless, who punched and kicked him as he cowered on the floor. METRO/CB

Man charged with rape attempt

EAST VILLAGE. A suspect has been arrested and charged with the attempted rape of a 27-year-old woman as she entered her East Village apartment earlier this month. Police say Imre Meszesan, 35, followed the woman into her apartment building on First Avenue at 3 a.m. on Nov. 13. He allegedly pushed her to the ground and tried to rape her, said police; she fought back and pushed him off. He has been charged with attempted rape as well as burglary. METRO/CB

National Diabetes Month is a great time to take control.

Talk to your doctor about lowering blood sugar levels. Talk to your doctor about JANUVIA.

- JANUVIA is a once-daily prescription pill that helps your body increase the insulin made in your pancreas and decrease the sugar made in your liver.
- Along with diet and exercise, JANUVIA helps lower blood sugar levels in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not likely to cause weight gain or low blood sugar (hypoglycemia).

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA: Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

Call 1-888-JANUVIA or visit Januvia.com.

Now you can get JANUVIA for as little as $5 per prescription.*

Eligible patients may pay as little as $5 out of pocket on each of up to 12 qualifying prescriptions. Maximum savings is $100 per prescription.

Medication Guide

JANUVIA® (jah-NEW-vee-ah) (sitagliptin) Tablets

Read this Medication Guide carefully before you start taking JANUVIA and each time you get a refill. There may be new information. This information does not take the place of talking with your doctor about your medical condition or your treatment. If you have any questions about JANUVIA, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?

Serious side effects can happen in people taking JANUVIA, including inflammation of the pancreas (pancreatitis) which may be severe and lead to death.

Certain medical problems make you more likely to get pancreatitis.

Before you start taking JANUVIA:

Tell your doctor if you have ever had

- pancreatitis
- stones in your gallbladder (gallstones)
- a history of alcoholism
- high blood triglyceride levels
- kidney problems

Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

What is JANUVIA?

- JANUVIA is a prescription medicine used along with diet and exercise to lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with type 1 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in your blood or urine).
- If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas) in the past, it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting pancreatitis while you take JANUVIA.
- It is not known if JANUVIA is safe and effective when used in children under 18 years of age.

Who should not take JANUVIA?

Do not take JANUVIA if:

- you are allergic to any of the ingredients in JANUVIA. See the end of this Medication Guide for a complete list of ingredients in JANUVIA.

Symptoms of a serious allergic reaction to JANUVIA may include:

- rash
- raised red patches on your skin (hives)
- swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty in breathing or swallowing

What should I tell my doctor before taking JANUVIA?

Before you take JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you:

- have or have had inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).
- have kidney problems.
- have any other medical conditions.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if JANUVIA will harm your unborn baby. If you are pregnant, talk with your doctor about the best way to control your blood sugar while you are pregnant.

  Pregnancy Registry: If you take JANUVIA at any time during your pregnancy, talk with your doctor about how you can join the JANUVIA pregnancy registry. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. You can enroll in this registry by calling 1-800-986-8999.
- are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. It is not known if JANUVIA will pass into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you are taking JANUVIA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your doctor and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

How should I take JANUVIA?

- Take JANUVIA 1 time each day exactly as your doctor tells you.
- You can take JANUVIA with or without food.
- Your doctor may do blood tests from time to time to see how well your kidneys are working. Your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA based on the results of your blood tests.
- Your doctor may tell you to take JANUVIA along with other diabetes medicines. Low blood sugar can happen more often when JANUVIA is taken with certain other diabetes medicines. See "What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?".
- If you miss a dose, take it as soon as you remember. If you do not remember until it is time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and go back to your regular schedule. Do not take two doses of JANUVIA at the same time.
- If you take too much JANUVIA, call your doctor or local Poison Control Center right away.
- When your body is under some types of stress, such as fever, trauma (such as a car accident), infection or surgery, the amount of diabetes medicine that you need may change. Tell your doctor right away if you have any of these conditions and follow your doctor's instructions.
- Check your blood sugar as your doctor tells you to.
- Stay on your prescribed diet and exercise program while taking JANUVIA.
- Talk to your doctor about how to prevent, recognize and manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), high blood sugar (hyperglycemia), and problems you have because of your diabetes.
- Your doctor will check your diabetes with regular blood tests, including your blood sugar levels and your hemoglobin A1C.

What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?

Serious side effects have happened in people taking JANUVIA.

- See "What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?".
- Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar, such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include:
  - headache
  - drowsiness
  - weakness
  - dizziness
  - confusion
  - irritability
  - hunger
  - fast heart beat
  - sweating
  - feeling jittery
- Serious allergic reactions. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away. See "Who should not take JANUVIA?". General information about the use of JANUVIA

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes that are not listed in Medication Guides. Do not use JANUVIA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give JANUVIA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Medication Guide summarizes the most important information about JANUVIA. If you would like to know more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for additional information about JANUVIA that is written for health professionals. For more information, go to www.JANUVIA.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

What are the ingredients in JANUVIA?

Active ingredient: sitagliptin.

Inactive ingredients: microcrystalline cellulose, anhydrous dibasic calcium phosphate, croscarmellose sodium, magnesium stearate, and sodium stearyl fumarate. The tablet film coating contains the following inactive ingredients: polyvinyl alcohol, polyethylene glycol, talc, titanium dioxide, red iron oxide, and yellow iron oxide.

What is type 2 diabetes?

Type 2 diabetes is a condition in which your body does not make enough insulin, and the insulin that your body produces does not work as well as it should. Your body can also make too much sugar. When this happens, sugar (glucose) builds up in the blood. This can lead to serious medical problems.

High blood sugar can be lowered by diet and exercise, and by certain medicines when necessary.

O-no-bama: Romney up in NH poll

Driven down by economic forces, President Barack Obama is running poorly in New Hampshire, a state he carried in 2008 and one that has been a swing state in recent presidential elections.

Obama trails Republican Mitt Romney among likely general election voters in the state by 10 percentage points in a hypothetical contest amid voter discontent with the president's job performance and the economy, according to a Bloomberg poll conducted Nov. 10-11. Obama carried New Hampshire by 54 percent to 45 percent in 2008.

Independent voters in the state, the site of the nation's first presidential primary, have swung even more strongly against Obama. Romney would win independents there by 15 percentage points, the poll shows.

Obama's standing illustrates the toll the U.S. economy has taken on him in a state that has fared better than most. BLOOMBERG

Supreme Court. Repeal?

▶ President Barack Obama has much to worry over lately.

Most against health care

As the Supreme Court prepares to review Obama's health care reform, more Americans want to see it repealed than want to keep it, a poll released yesterday shows. A Gallup survey of more than 1,000 U.S. adults found 47 percent favor the repeal of health care reform versus 42 percent who want the law kept in place. Eleven percent had no opinion. REUTERS

MF Global customers may get money back

NEW YORK. Thousands of former MF Global Holdings customers may soon recover $520 million of cash held in their accounts at the bankrupt brokerage, and a U.S. futures regulator called for robust oversight to limit the potential for another collapse.

A bankruptcy judge today will consider a request by James Giddens, the trustee supervising the liquidation of the MF Global Inc broker-dealer unit, to release $520 million to between 15,000 and 21,000 commodities customers who held only cash in their accounts. REUTERS

Risky bet

MF Global filed for bankruptcy protection on Oct. 31 amid a liquidity crunch as customers, credit-rating agencies and counterparties worried about its $6.3 billion bet on European sovereign debt.

Clinton gets egged

MANILA. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's motorcade was pelted with rocks, eggs and paintballs as she travelled through the Philippines capitol of Manila yesterday. The secretary was not injured in the incident, said State Department spokesman Mark Toner. Bieber baby suit dropped but not over

The woman who claimed teen singer Justin Bieber fathered a baby with her has dropped her paternity lawsuit, but Mariah Yeater's lawyer said yesterday she is pursuing her claim out of court.

Yeater, 20, of southern California, had claimed in her lawsuit that she had sex backstage with the 17-year-old Canadian singer last year and that he was the father of her baby who was born in July. She was demanding child support.

Bieber has repeatedly denied the allegation, saying he never met Yeater but said last week he would take a paternity test.

Chicago attorney Jeffery Leving said that Yeater had dropped the lawsuit but had a new legal team and hoped to reach a private settlement with Bieber's lawyers. "This matter is not over," Leving said.

It was not clear why the paternity lawsuit was dropped, but Leving said Yeater had received death threats and was being harassed by the media. REUTERS

"She believes Justin Bieber is the father. Negotiations are going on right now with Bieber's counsel." LEVING

▶ It's been an emotional few weeks for Penn State students.

Penn State names board member to oversee athletics

Penn State yesterday named as acting head of its shattered athletic department a member of the university board that forced out the previous athletic director after he was charged with covering up a child sex abuse scandal.

David M. Joyner, a graduate of the school and a member of its board of trustees, would assume responsibility for the athletic department, which has been rocked by the allegations against a former assistant football coach, the school said.

Jerry Sandusky, a former defensive coordinator once considered a likely successor to legendary coach Joe Paterno, was arrested two weeks ago and faces charges he sexually abused eight young boys over a 15-year period.

In the wake of the allegations, former athletic director Tim Curley was charged with failing to tell police about the alleged abuse and was forced to step down.

Paterno and former university president Graham Spanier, both of whom also knew about the allegations, were fired although they have not been charged with any crime. REUTERS

Bio

- Joyner received his bachelor's degree in science from Penn State in 1972 and his M.D. from the school's College of Medicine in 1976.
- Joyner, who wrestled and played football at Penn State, has specialized in sports medicine and worked as head physician to the U.S. teams at the 1992 Winter Olympics, the 1991 World University Games and the 1989 U.S. Olympic Festival, the school said.

PSU can't keep him off campus

STATE COLLEGE. Penn State says alleged child sex abuser Jerry Sandusky is "not welcome" on its campus, but the university so far has no legal recourse to keep the former assistant football coach away.

In her bail ruling, Judge Leslie Dutchot ordered the former defensive coordinator to not have any contact with minors, witnesses or alleged victims.

The ruling placed no restrictions on his travel. Sandusky's lawyer, Joe Amendola, advised Sandusky and his wife to take a trip ahead of the next legal proceeding to clear his head, he told CNN.

In effect, Sandusky is free to return to the Penn State campus, something school officials are powerless to stop. REUTERS

48-HOUR DISTRIBUTION: These seldom seen full uncut sheets of new $1 bills are being moved from the private vaults of the World Reserve Monetary Exchange for immediate distribution to NYC area residents. Residents who beat the 48-hour order deadline to get the vault stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios for just twenty-nine dollars per portfolio are getting the valuable uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills for just face value. That's a real steal because only the first 6,049 residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List are getting the Vault Stacks full of real money just by calling 1-888-248-7476 to beat the 48-hour deadline.

NYC area zip codes turn up cash for residents

Valuable Gov't issued uncut sheets of money are actually being handed over to the first 6,049 callers who find their zip code on the distribution list to the right and beat the 48-hour deadline to get Vault Stacks full of real money

VALUABLE: Pictured to the left are the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios, each loaded with a valuable uncut sheet of never circulated $1 bills. It's impossible to predict how much the bills will be worth in the future. But, since the Gov't has already shut down printing in 2006 on some uncut sheets of money, smart collectors are snatching up all the valuable uncut sheets of Gov't issued money they can get their hands on, so you better believe at just twenty-nine dollars and shipping the bankers portfolio is a real steal since the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48-hour order deadline are getting the valuable U.S. Gov't issued uncut sheet of money for just face value.

By Keith Berrymore
UNIVERSAL MEDIA SYNDICATE

UMS – NYC area residents who find their zip code on the Distribution List will feel like they just won the lottery.

That's because for the next 48 hours, full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills are being released by the World Reserve not to banks, not to dealers and not just to the rich and famous, but directly to NYC area residents who beat the order deadline.

The only thing residents need to do is look for their zip code on the Distribution List printed in today's publication. If their zip code appears on the list, they need to immediately call the Distribution Hotline before the 48-hour deadline to get the Vault Stack containing three protective bankers portfolios each loaded with its own full uncut sheet of never circulated $1 bills. But only the first 6,049 residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List can even get the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of real money.

"The money is being released until our last remaining uncut sheets of $1 bills are completely gone," said Jefferson Marshall, Executive Director of the private World Reserve.

"That's why we've set up a Toll Free Distribution Hotline to make sure residents get them now," he said.

"But everything in our vault may soon be gone. So residents who want to get the uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills had better hurry and call right now," Marshall said.

Those who get in on this now will be the really smart ones. Just think what they could be worth someday.

"Rare uncut sheets of real Gov't issued currency have sold at prestigious auction houses for thousands of dollars. Currency values always fluctuate, and there are never any guarantees. But at just twenty-nine dollars the bankers portfolio is a real steal since the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48-hour deadline are getting the valuable U.S. Gov't issued uncut sheet of money for just face value," Marshall said.

"You would expect to only see uncut money sheets on display in the Oval Office or under guard at the Smithsonian," he said.

"In fact, they are so seldom seen, banks don't even have them. That's why I've issued a directive to release a limited number of never circulated uncut sheets of valuable $1 bills from our private vault reserve to residents of the NYC area. Residents whose zip code is not on the Distribution List can't have our Vault Stacks of these full uncut sheets of $1 bills," Marshall said.

"These full uncut sheets of $1 bills will be highly sought after and are extremely popular to hand out as gifts for friends and family. They are sure to be this year's hottest Christmas gift," he said.

Most people have never even seen one of these full uncut sheets of four never circulated bills.

"We're bracing for all the calls. With just hours left, we're doing our best to make sure NYC area residents get through. But, it is important that residents find their zip code on the Distribution List and call the Toll Free Hotline right away to beat the deadline. Because when our release is over, it's over," he said.

"We're allowing residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List to claim as many as 10 Vault Stacks. But, since you can't get these Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of uncut sheets of money at banks, credit unions or even the Federal Reserve the limits will be strictly enforced," Marshall said.

"So, residents who want these full uncut sheets of real money need to call right now. If lines are busy keep trying, we promise to answer all calls," he said. ■

■ FULL UNCUT SHEETS: Above is one of the valuable full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills that are actually being released to NYC area residents. These crisp seldom seen uncut sheets of real money are being released on a first come, first served basis. That's why NYC area residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List need to call 1-888-248-7476 right away with Dept. Code ON590 to get the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of real money since they're only being released by the World Reserve through this offer for the next 48 hours.

How to get the money

The Toll Free Distribution Hotline opens at 8:30am today for NYC area residents only. The World Reserve has authorized the release of full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills to residents who beat the 48-hour deadline. If lines are busy, keep trying all calls will be answered. If you miss the deadline you'll be turned away from this offer and forced to wait for future announcements in this publication or others, if any.

The only thing readers need to do is find their zip code on the Distribution List below and be one of the first 6,049 residents who call and beat the order deadline to get the Vault Stack containing three protective bankers portfolios, for just $29 per portfolio and shipping are getting the valuable uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills for just face value. There is a strict limit of 10 Vault Stacks per household. To get yours call the Toll Free Hotline number below.

Chu sheds light on Solyndra

WASHINGTON. Contributors to President Barack Obama's campaign did not influence the decisions on government aid to the now-bankrupt solar panel maker Solyndra, Energy Secretary Steven Chu told National Public Radio.

Chu defended decisions made by the Energy Department on the $535 million loan guarantee to Solyndra in his first major interview on what has become a nagging political issue for the Obama administration.

"No decision we made in the loan program had anything to do with who is investing in this company," Chu said. REUTERS

"In June 2012, we will have a tablet that runs on Windows 8," Paul Amsellem told the newspaper. REUTERS

Google's iTunes? Execs: 'Unexciting'

- Internet search leader jumps into the game with rivals Apple, Amazon
- But analysts say Google will need to differentiate itself from competitors

Social media and mobile communications will be the two big targets for Google when it unveils a new music store for users, according to four people familiar with its plans.

But the giant Web search company's new music partners have already labeled the service "unexciting." Music executives had been hoping for a more groundbreaking, fully functional cloud-based service; but after licensing talks broke down earlier this year, Google scaled back its ambitions.

Google's new service is primarily a music download store in a similar mold to Apple Inc.'s 8-year-old iTunes Music Store, the biggest music retailer in the world, the sources said.

"Google can't just meet the bar set by Apple and Amazon. They're going to need to raise the bar and come up with some sort of differentiation."
MICHAEL GARTENBERG, ANALYST WITH RESEARCH FIRM GARTNER

The world's largest search company is playing catch-up to its biggest rivals Apple, Amazon.com Inc and Facebook, who have all to varying degrees integrated music into their core online and mobile products.

"Music is low-hanging fruit; it's another reason for people to buy its Android devices," said Mark Mulligan, an independent industry analyst.

One new feature that might help Google Music in its battle to distinguish itself from rivals is the ability of users of its social network Google+ to share songs they buy legally with other users. Another user will be able to listen to a song at least once, three people said. REUTERS

Deals in works

Google has negotiated U.S. deals with three of the four major music companies:

- Vivendi SA's Universal Music Group
- Sony Corp's Sony Music Entertainment
- EMI
- Warner Music Group Corp. has yet to reach a deal as it is in early stages of talks.

Pentagon touts big guns in case of cyber attack

WASHINGTON. The United States reserves the right to retaliate with military force against a cyber attack and is working to sharpen its ability to track down the source of any breach, the Pentagon said in a report made public on Tuesday.

The 12-page report to Congress, mandated by the 2011 Defense Authorization Act, was one of the clearest statements to date of U.S. cybersecurity policy and the role of the military in the event of a computer-borne attack.

"When warranted, we will respond to hostile attacks in cyberspace as we would to any other threat to our country," the report said. "We reserve the right to use all necessary means — diplomatic, informational, military and economic — to defend our nation, our allies, our partners and our interests." REUTERS

Report says quick action key

WASHINGTON. Key to a military response is being able to quickly identify the source of an attack, particularly challenging due to the anonymous nature of the Internet, the report said. Report: Banks face huge losses

As Occupy ire spreads nationwide, big financial institutions get ready for the blowback 'Bank Transfer Day' urged customers to move their money into more caring organizations — but what does that mean for banks?

ROBYN BECK/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Protestors march through the downtown Los Angeles financial district on Nov. 5, 2011 — what they called Bank Transfer Day. The event was a national effort to get people to move their money from large corporate banks into smaller banks or credit unions.

The next year might be a particularly bad one for the nation's largest banks if they don't begin to address their customers' needs more proactively.

The 10 largest banks in the U.S. are in danger of losing $185 billion in deposits during the next 12 months as more customers get fed up and choose to bank elsewhere, according to a new report from cg42, a boutique management consulting firm. Much of that will come from the four biggest banks in the country — Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase, Citibank and Wells Fargo — which are projected to lose a combined $135 billion in that time period.

Cg42's predictions are based on surveys conducted earlier this year with more than 5,000 customers from the 10 largest banks and found that 8.7 percent said they were likely to switch banks. The researchers then used data for the total retail deposits in 2010 — just more than $2 trillion — to come up with an estimate for how much these banks collectively stand to lose.

What is unclear though is whether all that lost revenue will go to credit unions and banks other than those listed here, or whether it will simply be redistributed among the 10 biggest as customers switch from one big-name bank to another.

Given the recent wave of consumers switching to credit unions, the big banks certainly have reason to worry that it may be the former. But either way, the data clearly show that the largest banks are in for a turbulent 2012.

Chase runs from check fees

NEW YORK. JPMorgan Chase confirmed that it will squash two additional checking account fees this week.

The bank will end a test program in Oklahoma, where consumers were charged a $10 monthly checking account that couldn't be waived through direct deposits or online banking requirements, a source familiar with the bank plans told MainStreet.

The bank will also call off a $15 monthly checking account fee that could only be waived if a customer maintains a minimum daily balance of at least $1,500, or a combined $5,000 in deposit and investment accounts. This fee was being tested in Atlanta.

Wearing a corset? It's a cinch, says Von Teese

Dita Von Teese attended the My Cointreau Travel Essentials event at the Forty Four at the Royalton on Tuesday.

ROBIN MARCHANT/FILMMAGIC

Striptease star and corset collector Dita Von Teese visited New York on Tuesday night to unveil Cointreau Travel Essentials, her portable cocktail kit for women on the go. Swizzle-stick thin and flanked by New York's downtown comedy king Murray Hill, she talked to Metro about why the new burlesque scene attracts so many female fans.

"I think it's because they like to see an alternative kind of beauty. I'm not tan, I'm not blonde, I don't look right in a bikini." When we protested, she explained, "Running on the beach in a bikini isn't really my thing. I'm never going to be on the cover of the Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue, let's put it that way."

With so many women embracing burlesque, does she see the corset making a comeback? "I think what's great is we have the option. We can wear whatever we want, and we can be whoever we want — and if we want to wear a corset, we can wear it our way. There are lots of ways to bring the corset into your life without suffering."

New to burlesque? Dita suggests catching a Dirty Martini show (www.missdirtymartini.com). "She's one of my favorite performers, and one of those women who shows that you can be beautiful at any size."

Who is the sexiest? Bradley Cooper

Bradley Cooper has been named People's Sexiest Man Alive.

Why? Let the fawning magazine count the ways: He went to Georgetown University (preppy!), cooks, is fluent in French, but isn't prissy, 'cause the dude knows how to drive a motorcycle. And, if that's not all, he's close to his mother. "My mother is going to be so happy," he told the magazine when he first found out the news. He also probably thought: "I'm going to get so much more tail because of this. Way to go, self."

Or perhaps he didn't think that? "If you're a single man and you happen to be in this business," he told the magazine, "you're deemed a player. But I don't see myself as a ladies' man." For the interview, Cooper was mum on his current relationships (including the gossip he was/is hooking up with Jennifer Lopez), just saying he describes himself as "single 36-year-old male."

Talking points

Diaz still uses the words 'booty call'

With Alex Rodriguez apparently out of the picture, Cameron Diaz seems to be rekindling her romance with Sean "Diddy" Combs, according to Us Weekly. Sources say the pair have had an on-again, off-again fling going since Combs first pursued Diaz in 2008. "Since then, when she's single, she'll booty call him," a source says. And now apparently is no different. The pair were recently spotted getting cozy at a dinner in New York, and then this week they turned heads in Los Angeles, where they were "making out, acting romantic" during a lunch in Beverly Hills. Reps for both say the stars are "just friends" and have been meeting to discuss a project.

Gallagher's Katie Holmes run-in

Noel Gallagher is none too pleased with Katie Holmes after the two had a run-in backstage at David Letterman's talk show. The problem? Holmes apparently objected to appearing in video footage being shot of the former Oasis guitarist, Gallagher says on his blog. "We literally bumped into that top Scientologist Katie Holmes on the way into the studio. We came out of the lift and BANG, there she was," Gallagher writes. "Now at this point my mate, and friend of the stars, Scully was doing a bit of filming for my website and managed to capture the moment. ... [Holmes] looked a bit miffed at the various Northwest accents and some vigorous handshaking. ... There was no need to send one of her people over to demand the video be deleted. Un-f—in'-believable."

Talk about awkward

George Clooney's ex-girlfriend and current girlfriend nearly had an awkward run-in, as both Elisabetta Canalis and Stacy Keibler showed up at a big bash at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood, according to Us Weekly. And while no words were exchanged between the two, the tension was reportedly palpable, as Canalis and Keibler "were always on opposite sides of the room," a party attendee says. "They were basically avoiding each other the whole night."

5 Reasons to go to the movies this weekend

Must-see

ANDREW COOPER

▶ Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart finally consummate their eternal burning love in "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 1."

1 'The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn - Part 1' All eyes are on Mr. and Mrs. Cullen this weekend, as mortal Bella and vampire Edward tie the knot and, you know, "break a headboard" — the new euphemism for Twihards everywhere.

2 'Happy Feet 2' The dancing penguins are back with an impressive list of celebrities giving voice to them. This time, the feisty feathered folk try to stave off a threat to their home.

3 'The Descendants' George Clooney is a Hawaiian land baron coping with his wife's comatose state after a water-skiing accident. As he takes on the parental duties, he also finds out shocking details of his wife's secret life without him.

4 'Immortals' Tarsem Singh, director of "The Cell" and one of the two new Snow White remakes, has a fun box-office hit on his hands with this tale of a man (Henry Cavill) chosen by Zeus to fight against King Hyperion and his quest to find the ultimate weapon of mass destruction.

5 'J. Edgar' Though Clint Eastwood's latest effort may not shine like some of his previous films, this biopic about the first head of the FBI is fascinating, if only for the way they made Leo DiCaprio look fat and decrepit. METRO

‘Nothing will come of nothing’

The Bard’s quote is a useful note for anyone tackling ‘King Lear’
It’s not enough to let the play rest on its four hours of laurels

Purists believe that the only way to do Shakespeare is to be straightforward and unedited; in the case of James Macdonald’s “King Lear” at the Public, the direct delivery of the play is its downfall. Clocking in a nearly four hours, the hefty production begs for a swift delivery and enticing visuals.

But the first act sloughs through the story’s setup, which many viewers already know. The set is quite bare and simplistic, robbing us a sense of time and place but leaving us room to appreciate the striking lighting designed by Christopher Akerland. As the play progresses, props of previous scenes are left on the stage where they fall — perhaps a commentary on how our past stays with us, or maybe we had too much time to think about it.

www.metro.us

FIND AN INTERVIEW WITH BILL IRWIN AT WWW.METRO.US/ARTS AND VISIT WWW.METRO.US/WELLPLAYED FOR EVEN MORE THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS ACROSS NYC.

The greatest tragedy of the night was indeed King Lear, but for all the wrong reasons. Sam Waterston, a noted vet with the Bard’s works, diminished the role to a series of hoarse shouts stuck somewhere between proud and petulant, despite shades of rage and insanity. As middle daughter Regan, Kelli O’Hara shows greater complexity, invoking sympathy even as she grows increasingly desperate. In a minor role, Michael Crane as Oswald is devious and a pleasure to watch. Other standouts were the brothers of Gloucester: Arian Moayed as Edgar is believable as a naive lord striving to be a noble son, while Seth Gilliam as Edmund is a charming villain, strutting in self-delight. The frenetic fool (Bill Irwin) — a role often omitted — breaks up the gravitas. But were he not there, would we miss him? Those who do enjoy his escapades are left wanting when he disappears in the second act.

It’s a sad showing from a company that’s frequently renowned for its Shakespeare. We recommend that you stay home to pick an insensible, endless fight with your own family — it will be cheaper, and probably everyone won’t die at the end.

A deeper look into the life of Jobs

'The Agony and the Ecstasy of Steve Jobs' was updated to reflect Jobs' recent passing Walk away understanding the Apple founder to his core

"The Agony and the Ecstasy of Steve Jobs," Mike Daisey's timely one-man show, centers on the life (and, as an afterthought, death) of Steve Jobs and the shady practices surrounding the technology whiz's iconic business conglomerate. The writer-actor's infectious enthusiasm and love for his subject is the piece de resistance that invests us in the allegory and makes its grimness even harder to bear. It takes us from the shallow comforts of our warm computer screen glow to the bowels of China where anything Apple is built on the backs of workers of whose ages are as questionable as the company's ethics. Daisey parcels our medicine about the dark side to this IT titan in a spoonful of candy-like anecdotes that we can't stop gorging on. It's the rare balance of information and comedy that's key to hooking audiences in the Jon Stewart news world.

The monologue runs nearly two hours without an intermission. Though there's minimal staging (a light board, table and chair), and Daisey remains seated throughout, the performance comes off as a physical feat. The material is a high-wire balancing act best left to one who understands comedic timing, audience tolerance and energy allotment — such as its author.

The one downside is that it's missing the firm hand of an editor who isn't too close to the source. There's no doubt that a slightly tighter script would seal the seams on a nearly flawless show. Understandably, Jobs' sudden passing just over a week before opening night meant that the play's ending was abruptly tweaked — and doubled in weight sheerly by the burden of context — but the dramatic judgment passed in the last minutes could benefit from a delivery as curt as it is acrid and astute.

'Immortals' six-pack impact

- Getting into godlike shape for 'Immortals' wasn't easy
- But you can't argue with results
- Here, some of the guys from the film talk about what went into bringing perfection to life

▶ Henry Cavill could crush some beer cans against that six-pack.

▶ Stephen Dorff

The 'joys' of the 'Immortals' diet:

▶ Stephen Dorff (Stavros): "The crew would break for lunch and we couldn't go near it. We would get these little stunt meals in this box and we'd be hungry right afterwards. It was very clean, no carbs. To have no body fat, you have to eat ridiculously clean. It's very boring — no salt, none of the good stuff. So on my day off I would go to McDonald's, ice cream places and pizza places and eat until the point that I [would] feel sick."

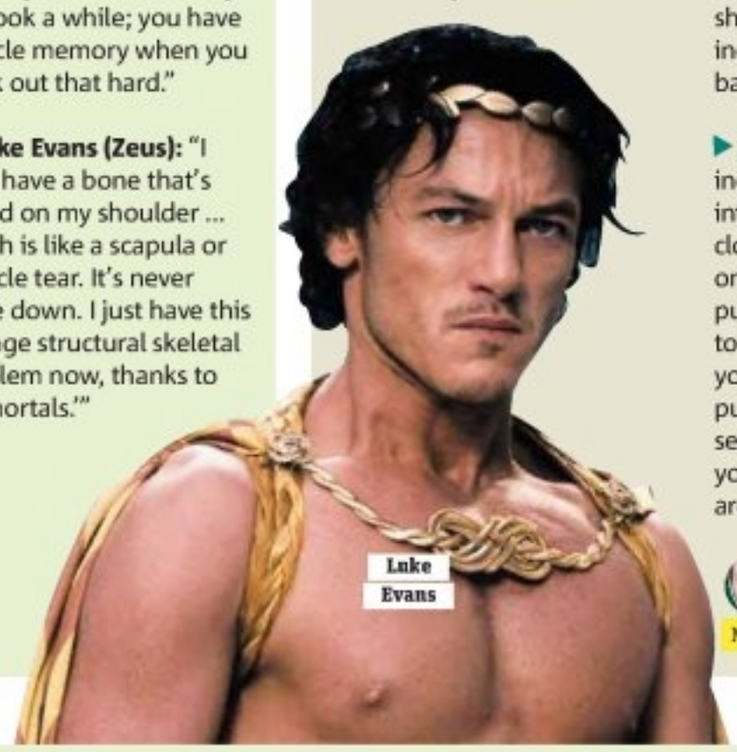
The downside of looking so good:

▶ Stephen Dorff: "The only problem was I had crazy abs that wouldn't go away. For my next movie, I had to not look like I was in a gym. So it was complicated. I had to learn to stick my stomach out so I could hide my 'Immortals' body. [It] took a while; you have muscle memory when you work out that hard."

▶ Luke Evans (Zeus): "I now have a bone that's raised on my shoulder ... which is like a scapula or clavicle tear. It's never gone down. I just have this strange structural skeletal problem now, thanks to 'Immortals.'"

Letting the training help with the acting

▶ Luke Evans: "I trained for seven weeks. It makes you stand differently. You look yourself in the mirror and you look different. I saw my body change in seven weeks. It does definitely do something to inform your character in a sort of subliminal way. It definitely had an effect for me."



Luke Evans

▶ Henry Cavill (Theseus): "It's like wearing a permanent costume. Before work when you look in the mirror — or even before looking in the mirror — you do feel different. A part of the character is more expressive in you and so when you're in that kind of shape, I essentially was wearing my costume because I barely had [one]."

▶ Stephen Dorff: "The training for 'Immortals' was quite intense, because we wear no clothes in the movie. It's the one film where if you don't put in the work, you're going to look kind of dumb when you're older and you rent this puppy. Or one of your kids sees it and says, 'Daddy, you're naked in this but why are you fat?'"

Brooke Shields gets back to nature

For her latest flick, "The Greening of Whitney Brown," Brooke Shields found herself deep in the Georgia wilderness — not exactly what she's used to calling home.

"I'm born and bred in Manhattan," Shields says. "I'm not squeamish about the country — I had horses for a long time and loved being outdoors — but I'm concrete through and through."

Shields, 46, plays Joan Brown, whose daughter, Whitney, is the most popular girl at her middle school — not to mention a total brat. When Shields' on-screen husband (Aidan Quinn) loses his job, the family is uprooted to her father-in-law's abandoned farm, nowhere near civilization. Without the presence of iPhones, computers and TVs, Whitney is forced to take a step back and rediscover what it really means to act like a kid.

As a mom of two in real life, Shields embraced the simple living message.

"I think we've lost the value of actual communication," she says. "You have to really be cognizant of talking with your kids, of spending actual time with them."

Though Shields was once a child star, she says she didn't really need to show the ropes to Sammi Hanratty, who plays Whitney.

"Working with Sammi was such a joy because she's already innately lovely and professional, and [she] takes it seriously," she says. "These are things, as a young star, you hope to see and I attribute a lot of that to [her] mom and dad."

9 Laws of consumer affinity in the digital age

Author Brian Solis of research-based advisory firm Altimeter Group explains what businesses need to understand about online consumer behavior in order to be successful

Today, people have uninhibited access to platforms, channels and tools to express themselves at will. That group's voice, employed individually or collectively, can reach the masses to organize game-changing movements across the world. Yet, despite the universal potential for connectivity, businesses are still struggling to understand the real impact of connected consumerism.

On a basic level, consumers need to feel that they are being heard, that action is taken on their behalf. Gaining followers on Twitter or Likes on Facebook is one thing — but to connect and foster real relationships, organizations must learn how to listen and adapt to consumer engagement.

The reality is that society and technology evolve faster than a brand's ability to adapt. The good news is you have a role in defining where things go next. It all begins with attracting the attention of connected consumers and delivering consistent value to ultimately earn their affinity.

Today's biggest trends — the mobile Web, social media, gamification, real-time — are changing the landscape for business, government, media and consumerism. However, as consumers become better at personalizing their online experiences, they re-evaluate the people, organizations and information with whom they choose to connect. Therefore, the keys to long-term engagement and relationships are intelligence, empathy and resilience.

Although this is the end of business as usual, it's also the beginning of a new era of visibility. Businesses now have the opportunity to become relevant in new channels and networks by forming meaningful alliances. To do that takes far more than gimmicks, contests and clever videos. It takes consistent value that the user can appreciate over time.

Connected consumers discover and communicate differently than their traditional consumer counterparts. To connect with them, companies must identify potential challenges, trends, POVs and interests. To adapt, organizations need to examine the impact of technology on consumer behavior, and to understand its effect on consumer decision-making and peer influence.

To attract consumers and earn their loyalty, businesses must follow the "Laws of Attraction and Affinity."

The laws:

1. Identify where connected consumer attention is focused.
2. Define a higher purpose — genuine intentions that will attract connected consumers and give them something to align with.
3. Establish an identity and a presence worthy of affiliation. Give people something to believe in — something exciting to be a part of.
4. Design your engagement strategies to be beneficial and shareable — this is, after all, about shared experiences.
5. Localize the value, content, storefront and engagement program to match the culture and activity within each direct-to-consumer (D2C) community.
6. This isn't a power play; stay consistent and dedicated through meaningful interaction.
7. Remain true to the original mission and intention. Do not be swayed by short-term temptations.
8. Recognize and reward community participants — reciprocity is a strong pillar of community relationships.
9. The adaptive business will listen, learn and change based on the needs of the connected consumer. That way, a brand will consistently stay relevant and valuable.

SHOULD I SLEEP WITH HIM ON THE FIRST DATE?

Shrink wrap

Dr. JANE GREER

letters@metro.us

Blake Lively and Ryan Reynolds might be going strong in their relationship — having been spotted enjoying a cozy meal together in Boston this past weekend — but it wasn't too long ago that they had their first date. Even a celebrity has to consider that all pervasive question: Should I sleep with him on the first date? Like anyone at the beginning of a relationship, you have to ask yourself what you want out of the relationship. Will he/she still call in the morning, whatever you decide?

To begin with, you must have a few things in order so you can feel good about yourself the morning after — no matter what happens. Be very clear about your expectations. If you want to have a sexual romp because you're in the mood, haven't had sex in quite a while, find your guy attractive and want to exercise your sexual freedom, then — as long as you are aware that this one night may be all you share together — you can decide to go ahead with an open mind and clear conscience.

It's important for you to think about this before the date so you can take responsibility and practice safe sex. This way you won't wind up feeling pressured or caught off guard, which can lead to taking risks.

But if this is a guy you'd really like to get to know better and would like to see again, it may be best to hold off on getting sexually involved — many times first-date sex for guys means something entirely different from what it means to women. The guys can have sex and consider it a "great date," but that doesn't necessarily mean that they want to get to know you better. In fact, for some guys the sexual encounter may be enough for them — and then they are ready to move on and meet someone new.

So, unless you are completely comfortable with the fact that you may never hear from the guy again, and that's fine with you, you are probably better off waiting — at least for date No. 2!

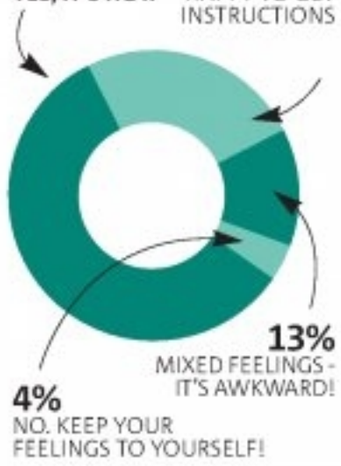
Men: Do you like getting feedback in the bedroom?



Ladies, it's time to speak up for your needs in the bedroom ◆ Guess what? ◆ Guys actually want to know what you're thinking

Ladies, you've been slacking. Unfortunately, the bedroom is still a place where the men tend to dominate in a heterosexual relationship, according to dating expert Amber Madison.

"We tend to look at sex as this male thing," she says. "It's like, 'If I'm pissed at him, I'm not having sex with him.' It's looked at as this reward for a man rather than a relationship thing."

Madison recently published her book "Are All Guys A—holes?," in which she did field research — interviewing 1,000 guys in 10 cities. What she found was surprising. She asked men if they liked hearing feedback from women in the bedroom and found that 58 percent of them love it.

"Women should take more responsibility for their sexual pleasure and figure out what feels good." MADISON

"Women should take more responsibility for their sexual pleasure and figure out what feels good for them and make sure in the bedroom that they communicate that," she says.

The sex and dating expert has recently endorsed the new "We-Vibe 3" — a couples' vibrator that lacks the intimidation factor that can steer the squeamish away.

"One of the things with the We-Vibe brand is to be a discreet product," says Sarah Bobas, the marketing and communications manager at We-Vibe. "You don't want to walk in with something that off the bat makes your partner feel threatened. [The We-Vibe] enables us to get into the conversation without people getting shy or intimidated about what we're talking about, which is just sexual intimacy, being closer to your partner." ‘BEAUTY WITH A THOUGHT’

That’s how Stockholm-based designer Efva Attling describes her jewelry line Stop by her new Meatpacking store for an inspirational pick-me-up Positive thinking goes a long way. Just ask former model-turned-pop star-turned-jewelry designer Efva Attling, who lives by this motto — and a few others.

In her new store on Little W. 12th Street in the Meatpacking District, uplifting expressions such as “memento vivere” (remember to live) and “make love not war” are etched on sleek rings and necklaces.

“Because I used to write songs and lyrics, I really want to continue with my jewelry to write things that connect people — and to move people,” says Attling. “The greatest thing with music is that you connect with people and you make people say, ‘Wow, you express exactly what I can’t express myself.’”

Attling

So far the line — which she started 12 years ago — has resonated with some famous faces. Madonna’s been spotted wearing her “Human” ring. (“For me,” Attling says, “that means to be a good human being, and to respect you, and to respect me.”) And Uma Thurman helped fete the new store at the opening party last month.

And although opening a boutique in one of NYC’s fashion hubs is a somewhat scary venture, Attling takes comfort in one of her favorite expressions: amor fati.

“That means ‘the love for our destiny,’” she says. “You get this one life and you should make the best of it. You can’t blame anyone else for it. You can’t rely on anyone else either. It's you in the driver's seat. The love for our destiny … let’s make the best out of this life.”

GEMOLOGIST ON PREMISES.

"I have been in the jewelry business for 33 years. And I sell almost all my jewelry in the retail market with advertisements in the best jewelry magazines and on television, which means I have to find items to fill a huge customer demand. We are looking for everything, from costume jewelry to the finest estate items. We buy items for less than a dollar to more than $25,000. And we hope we can spend $400,000 or this week. I love buying antique jewelry. In the last 90 days, I paid $14,000 for a pendant, $7,500 for a bracelet, and $14,000 for a ring. I am a collector myself, and would love the opportunity to look at your jewelry."

WE ARE CONFIDENT OUR BUYERS WILL BEAT MOST LEGITIMATE OFFERS!

How to Test Us

Take your valuable items to other dealers before bringing them to us. Have them give you legitimate written offers. Then bring your items and your written offers to us. No one can guarantee to pay the highest prices all the time. But we believe the buyers we have chosen will beat most legitimate written offers.

Why Are We Telling You To Get Prices From Others?

Our buyers find it much easier to buy items of value from their customers after they have had previous offers. So it is in our own self interest to have you get written offers before coming to us. We also find that our customers are happier because they have the peace of mind of knowing they received a fair price.

Why Our Buyers May Be Able To Pay More

Our group of buyers will be here for only a few days. But in those few days, some of our buyers will buy more than many dealers buy in a year. Because of the volume of merchandise they handle, some of our buyers have developed world-wide markets and clients to liquidate their purchases at the best prices, which is one of the keys to why they can pay more than other dealers.

What Makes Us Different?

Most dealers who buy and sell items of value specialize in only a few areas. As a result, they are likely to make low offers for items in markets they are not familiar with.

For example, almost all jewelers specialize in new items. They do not often deal with old or used watches, which means they are unfamiliar with the true markets for such items. So if you have a used watch to sell, chances are a jeweler will make an offer on the low side because he does not want to make a mistake and pay too much.

The same thing applies to almost all items of value, such as lady items, art, jewelry, etc., that you bring to normal dealers.

Anderson, Carter, Bascom & Assoc. and Estate Buyer by MJD is different. Our volume buying has allowed us to bring together a large group of knowledgeable buyers. And although we do not control what our buyers pay, we believe they are comfortable paying prices that beat legitimate written offers from other dealers.

"UP TO" PRICES

IMPORTANT: All prices are based on rarity & condition. If an item is in poor condition, its value will be low. If an item is very rare, and in superb condition, it might be worth more than the "up to" prices listed. For example, a 1919 10¢ could be worth $1,400 in very high-quality condition or less than $1 in poor condition. In most cases, the "up to" prices listed in this advertisement are for items of exceptional rarity and quality. Chances are, you will not have those items. But we are willing to take the time to look at your items, just in case free of charge and give you our opinion.

IMPORTANT ECONOMIC INFORMATION

During the past few years, low interest rates, war, and an uncertain stock market combined to push prices of gold, silver, and many collectibles to their highest levels in 25 years. We have studied the investment and collectibles markets for decades, and in the past during times of economic uncertainty (which is happening now), there have been dramatic price declines in many areas of the jewelry, coin, and collectible markets.

Which is why this may be the best time in decades for you to sell for some of the highest prices ever

Libraries are for the people

RE: "SALVAGED BOOKS ARE UP FOR GRABS": Your coverage of the destruction of the People's Library at Occupy Wall Street overlooked key elements of the story. The library was a fully functional lending library for all ages comprising thousands of books donated by private citizens and corporations to be accessed by any member of the public. Far from being "safely stored," many of the books have been damaged, a large percentage of them are missing or presumed destroyed and the library's laptops are smashed. The destruction of a library is an attack on cultural memory. It is antithetical to our national identity to have a militarized police force tear down a public library in the dark of night.

Bloomberg — whadda guy! After forcefully confiscating food, clothing, shelter and books, he kindly offers protesters the chance to get back their stuff — but only with of proof of ownership! What, these guys want receipts?

NBC nepotism stealing jobs

Former President Clinton's daughter Chelsea, like former President George Bush's daughter Jenna Bush, did not obtain her job as an NBC news correspondent by responding to help wanted ads in the New York Times. Surely there are better qualified legitimate reporters with real journalism credentials available to fill these positions. No outcry from the Wall Street protestors how the "1 percent" now are taking jobs away from the other "99 percent!"

Bankers care about one thing

RE: "BOFA: DEBIT CARD FEE WAS BIG ERROR": Mr. Moynihan isn't so concerned with producing a return for shareholders; he is more concerned there won't be enough profit for his bonus. The reason there are "new regulations" is because of banking industry abuse of their customers.

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Because you're in tune with the world, don't be surprised by the clout and influence you may find yourself having today. Press for that which could advance your ambitions.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Some good news that is coming to you from a distant venue is trying to break through. Be sure to check all the sources you use for info.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Two separate friends of yours, unaware of each other, are both engaging in something on your behalf today in hopes of being able to acquire what you've been craving.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Anybody who meets you for the first time will be favorably impressed. There is a strong chance you will acquire a new lifelong pal.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. A project you're able to complete today is likely to give you a sense of accomplishment. Someone whose attention you've been trying to attract may also notice it.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. It will become quite clear to you today that you are much more popular with your contemporaries than you ever thought.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Put on your thinking cap and check all the advertisements, because friends will be looking to you to come up with an event in which to participate.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. It might be left to you to avert an altercation between two friends who get into it. Because you like both equally, you'll know how to cool their hot heads.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. The little bits of money you've been squirreling away have finally added up to that whopping sum you need to get something you've been hankering. Go get it.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Being a trifle restless and hard to get along with makes you a perfect candidate to spend some time with active friends who can put you in a happy mood. Don't hesitate to do so today.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Because conditions in general tend to be far more favorable for you than usual, this is likely to be a perfect day to reap some nominal opportunities from some unexpected sources.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you're someone who is presently unattached, this is a perfect day to get out and mingle. Members of the opposite gender will find you far more appealing than usual.

Give thanks for these craft beers

We know your mind is on gravy-making and pumpkin pie-baking
But don't forget to add beer to your shopping list Some expert recommendations

Having the right drink to accompany Thanksgiving dinner can make your meal all the more satisfying. According to Josh Schaffner, the founder and director of New York Craft Beer Week, a brewski is an optimal choice for next Thursday because its properties reflect those of a traditional Thanksgiving meal.

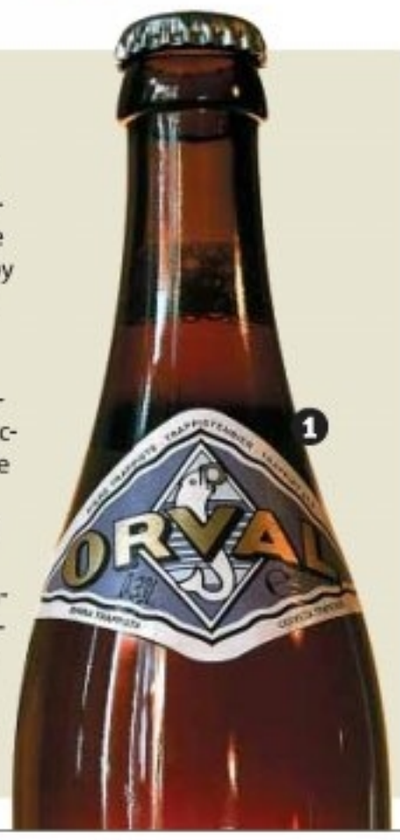
"Beer is essentially liquid bread," he says. "So when you think of Thanksgiving, the base of stuffing is almost always bread, and then it's flavored with additional things. Its mirror image is beer."

We got Schaffner's top picks for what to serve alongside your turkey.

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

Must-have

1 Orval: "[It's] produced by one of the six remaining Trappist breweries of the world — it's actually made by monks. The beer has a little bit of a wild and funky element to it — they add a type of wild yeast to the bottling in order to achieve a secondary fermentation and the resulting carbonation. Any bottle conditioned beer will have a more effervescent mouthfeel with finer carbonation; but because of the addition of the wild yeast, Orval also has a wonderfully unique flavor accenting the carbonation."



Big beers

2 Southampton Cuvee des Fleurs: "Just for the presentation factor, it's easier if there's a couple of bigger bottles at the center of the table to pass around, as opposed to everybody having a little bottle next to them. The Southampton Cuvee des Fleurs is made in Long Island, and it is named as such because it uses a selection of different edible flowers as flavoring adjuncts. It's also one of the drier beers."

3 Brooklyn Brewery Local 1: "It's kind of Brooklyn's homage to Belgian strong golden ales. It's very versatile and there's nothing that it's really gonna conflict with that would appear on a Thanksgiving table."

4 Brooklyn Brewery Brooklyn Sorachi Ace: "If you enjoy a more spiced meal, I feel that [this] beer will stand up to that reasonably well."

Safe bet

5 Any pumpkin beer: "Some are sweeter, some are spicier, some are more robust. A lot of people think that would be a better beer to serve with the desserts, but I think it's even better to have before the meal starts."

Drink up!

Schaffner created the menu for this weekend's Novembeerfest, taking place at 82 Mercer St. For tickets, visit www.iadventure.com.

Quoted

Josh Schaffner on holiday hops:

"People generally gorge themselves during Thanksgiving, so it's best to avoid very heavy, sugar-laden beers. I like to lean toward beers that have a drier profile and that are also a bit more effervescent, meaning that the texture on your palate is one where the carbonation really pops, cleansing your palate."

The New York Yankees of meatballs

Sorry, long-suffering Mets fans These meaty guys say their cuisine resembles New York's most winning baseball team And they now have the cookbook to prove it The story behind their successful business

When you think of meatballs, you might think of warm comfort food like mama used to make. But for Michael Chernow, co-owner of the popular Meatball Shop restaurants, baseball comes to mind.

"Meatballs have been around forever, and the Yankees have been around forever," Chernow says. "The Yankees never get old and continue to win, and meatballs never get old and they continue to win," he laughs.

Along with friend and co-owner Daniel Holzman, the dynamic duo's meatball business — they have two locations in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn — keeps hitting home runs. But, according to Chernow, the concept behind their success wasn't always meatball bound. The pair originally planned to go in together on a higher-end style restaurant. That all changed when they saw the venue.

"The space had a bit of a side window that was directly next to a busy bar where there were patrons outside smoking cigarettes and chatting away," Chernow remembers. "Daniel looked at that and said, 'That's a revenue stream right there.'"

That's when the idea of meatballs came rolling on through — and from there, so did the customers. Then the other locations. And now, finally, their new book, "The Meatball Shop Cookbook," has hit stores. The cookbook contains over 20 meatball recipes, as well as sauces, sides, desserts and more.

Winning, indeed.

SALLY MORRIS

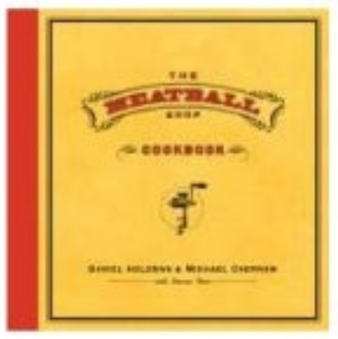
MELISSA HORN

The book



"The Meatball Shop Cookbook" co-author Michael Chernow's go-to recipe for this season is their smashed turnips with horseradish (see below). "They are just incredible. It's very simple preparation and they are so delicious and in season right now."

Recipe

Smashed turnips with fresh horseradish

Serves 4 to 6

Ingredients

- 8 large turnips (about 2 pounds), peeled and quartered
- ½ cup sour cream
- 6 scallions, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons freshly grated horseradish or more to taste
- 2 teaspoons salt

BALLANTINE BOOKS

▶ Chernow's favorite pick from the cookbook for this season is the smashed turnips with fresh horseradish.

Directions

1. Place the turnips in a large pot with enough water to cover by two inches. Bring them to a boil over high heat, and then reduce the heat to low and simmer until fork-tender, about 25 minutes. Drain them until they're completely dry.
2. Place the turnips in a bowl and, while they are still hot, add the sour cream, scallions, horseradish and salt. Mash with a wire whisk or potato masher until well combined but still chunky. Serve immediately.

'How to Make It' in NYC

ERIC LIEBOWITZ

▶ Bryan Greenberg stars in "How to Make It in America," airing Sundays at 10:30 p.m. on HBO. Sons of Essex is located at 133 Essex St. (212-674-7100).

Every week we're checking in with the hustlers from HBO comedy "How to Make It in America" for recommendations on top spots in NYC to see and be seen. Today's tip comes from Bryan Greenberg, who plays Ben Epstein, one half of the budding fashion design team CRISP.

Sons of Essex

Neighborhood: Lower East Side

The scene: Very Lower East Side — you walk in and it's decorated like an old-school deli that sells local downtown NYC and Brooklyn-made food. When you walk to the back, it's more of a restaurant where you can just chill — but it still feels like you're in a cool joint.

What goes down: It's a new place in a great historic neighborhood where I can easily meet friends, feel relaxed and get some good eats. Stay tuned for the BGPBJ — my personal version of a peanut butter sandwich. Still refining the ingredients, but I'm thinking fried bananas.

Why it's a place to help you "Make It": It's not as intense as some of the other Lower East Side spots. It's more relaxed and you can feel comfortable. They have great music, and it's a good late-night spot. METRO

A couple walks into a bar ...

We ask celebrities what they look for in their nightlife experiences. This week, with only one question to prompt them, Regis and Joy Philbin share their preference for leathery booths and they divulge how "Sex and the City" turned them on to a favorite cocktail. MEREDITH ENGEL

What kind of bars do you like? Do you like divey bars, chic restaurants?

Regis: You hit it, sister! We love chic restaurants. One of us adores chic restaurants.

Joy: One of us wouldn't be seen in anything but a chic restaurant. What I think appeals to us are those big red leather cushions from the old days. We don't like these restaurants where you are sitting at a little table and somebody's right next to you, but we have found that we always gravitate toward big banquets.

Joy: It's fun; have a cosmo, talk about your day ...

Regis: We love our cosmos! There is one place, Valbella, in the Meatpacking District — and another up in Greenwich — and every Saturday night that we can, we go to that restaurant. And they know exactly what we want and they bring us our cosmos. We were never into the cosmo business until we saw "Sex and the City," and all those girls drank cosmos and I had never heard of it. "What are they drinking?"

Joy: Well, Kelly would kid you and say it was girly drink.

Regis: It is a girly drink, but I love it!

Joy: He drinks it with a little finger up.

Regis: I could go for a cosmo right now.

Joy and Regis are a very cosmo couple.

An exclusive chat with a master blender

Just what goes on when you create a new whisky? We talk with Johnnie Walker master blender Jim Beveridge to find out New this year for the label

At $40 a bottle, Johnnie Walker Double Black is an exclusive spirit at a reasonable price.

It's not everyday you talk to a master blender of scotch whisky. It's also not every day you can buy a bottle of Johnnie Walker Double Black, as it's only out for the holiday season.

But luckily, in a rare interview, Metro was able to get master blender Jim Beveridge to discuss both — in his thick Scottish brogue, no less.

"Well, it's quite a lot, really," he laughed when asked what a master blender does on a day-to-day basis. (To wit, he's the man: he creates the whiskies you'll be drinking now and in a few decades.) "The key to the whole job is understanding the flavors and how they combine to create a great blend. That's the first requirement."

Beveridge says the main job requirement is thinking about how flavors mix and express themselves as well as what kind of cask to let them mature in. But, as he notes, all master blenders have to have one eye on the future. "The whiskies for Black Label that are being distilled today will be in our warehouses for 12 years before it will be used, so I have to think ahead as well."

One of the whiskies Beveridge has had a hand in creating is the aforementioned Johnnie Walker Double Black. For the spirit, Beveridge blends more of the Islay scotches into the blend so it's more smoky than the regular Black Label. "The starting point is Johnnie Walker Black Label," he explains about how he created the special blend. "So it has all of the complex flavors and mixture of fruitiness and sweet vanilla flavors and the classic smokiness of it; I like to think the Double Black as being dialed up a bit."

If you go

Another worthy gift for the season

Beveridge also created Johnnie Walker Blue Label, which, at $220 a bottle, is the rarest blend in the Walker portfolio. For the holiday season, you can engrave a bottle with a printed or handwritten message. Buy a bottle and get the engraving done at their stand in Grand Central Terminal, Graybar Passage, from Monday through Fridays from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. or Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

CINDY FREY

▶ Kelliher of Mastodon is on the far right with the belt buckle that says his name.

Recipe for metal

When Mastodon combine mythology, big creatures, dinosaurs and intricate album artwork, it's a perfect concoction ◐ 'We're all still like kids,' says guitarist and singer

If there's one thing about heavy metal that's often overlooked, it's that the music is as theatrically intense as it is sonically relentless. Take Mastodon, who returned this fall with "The Hunter" — a proper follow-up to the Atlanta metalheads' critically acclaimed "Crack the Skye." Not only does "The Hunter" include a download code for a nifty 3-D, interactive "Augmented Reality Experience" to play with, but the intricate cover also captures Mastodon's rich, mythology-themed music.

"You have to make a good representation of what's on the inside on the outside," co-guitarist and singer Bill Kelliher says. "We're all fans of mythology and dinosaurs and big creatures — the unknown and weird things. All the things that 14-year-old boys are interested in."

Kelliher pauses, realizing that he just equated Mastodon with juveniles. He laughs: "We're all still like kids in that way."

As an actual kid growing up in Rochester, N.Y., Kelliher would browse record stores — and more often than not, it was an album cover that got him hooked before the music.

"I'd pick up the Agnostic Front records, or Iron Maiden's, and think, 'Wow, this must be awesome,'" he recalls. "You look at Slayer's 'Reign In Blood' and think, 'Wow, this is sick!'"

Indeed, we do.

"That's what drew me in to listening to Iron Maiden or Slayer. It piques your curiosity. If there's a dumb photo of the band on the cover you think, 'What is this crap?' That's not interesting to me."

On the 'Hunt'

Artwork aside, it's the music that galvanized critics to high praise when "The Hunter" emerged.

"We're doing the best we can," says Kelliher. "We had a month before we left for a European tour. I didn't think we were ready to go into the studio, but lo and behold, all of a sudden we had this amazing f—ing record. It was an outpouring of creativity."

Cruz avoids nightclub shooting

The Giants must've had a horrific flashback early Tuesday morning when gunshots rang out in a New York nightclub.

While the incident reportedly did not include anyone who represents Big Blue or anyone associated with Victor Cruz's party, a life was lost and two more people are in stable condition after the fracas at the Juliet Supper Club — a popular hangout for local professional athletes.

The ascending star wideout was celebrating his birthday, along with a handful of other teammates, including Hakeem Nicks, Aaron Ross, Antrel Rolle and Chris Canty, when the shooting occurred in the wee hours of Tuesday morning.

"I understand that's the responsibility I chose and that comes with the territory," Cruz said. "But as long as I don't do anything boneheaded [like] start carrying guns or doing something crazy, I'll be all right."

Tom Coughlin expressed disappointment in his players being in the wrong place at such a late hour.

"The only one I heard about initially was Victor and thank God he was safe," Coughlin said. "What happens good at 2:30, 3 in the morning? I've never been able to figure that one out … beyond that, it [their chat] is between he and I."

Pressure rests on Sanchez's shoulders

'Sanchise' feeling much of blame for rocky start to Jets season ◐ He grades himself only on his record ◐ Ryan is confident his QB is a winner

JIM MCISAAC/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Sanchez threw two interceptions against the Patriots in Jets' 37-16 loss.

With less than two minutes left in the fourth quarter of the Jets' loss to New England, MetLife Stadium was empty but for some celebrating Patriots fans.

A shout came down from someone in the upper deck: "Sanchise? Ha! You got to be kidding me!"

Such is the state of affairs for Jets quarterback Mark Sanchez, once affectionately known as the "Sanchise" due to his importance to the franchise. The honeymoon is over for the third-year quarterback as errors and mistakes continue to plague him and the 5-4 Jets. It isn't easy for Sanchez — who unfairly carries more than his fair share of the burden — to assess his progress, or lack thereof, so far this season.

"At this point we're 5-4. So, that's how I grade myself," Sanchez said. "I think, if anything, everybody in this locker room, we're all just a little frustrated, and a little upset at this last loss, because we thought we could've put ourselves in a good position, but I grade myself at 5-4 and we'll see how this season turns out."

For the Jets, Sanchez's worth is measured in how he performs come playoff time, a winning track record head coach Rex Ryan quickly points to when asked about the play of his quarterback. It is an effective answer that falls short of fully answering his worth to the team.

"Well, I think Mark is an outstanding quarterback, and again, I like the guys that win," Ryan said. "And I think Mark is a winner — we've won a lot of games."

LT, Kerley ruled out against Broncos

Mark Sanchez will have a little less to work with tonight.

Both running back LaDainian Tomlinson and wide receiver Jeremy Kerley didn't practice yesterday and have been ruled out against the Broncos.

Tomlinson said he would have been ready to play if this week's game was on Sunday, but the quick turnaround wouldn't allow it. He plans to play next week against Buffalo.

In addition to playing the slot, Kerley returns kickoffs.

In the news

Vick doesn't practice

The Giants' game plan still waits in limbo. Eagles quarterback Mike Vick again didn't practice yesterday, but he has yet to be ruled out of Sunday's game against the Giants. Receiver Jeremy Maclin also didn't practice for the Eagles and is questionable.

METRO

In the news

Francona won't manage in 2012

Theo Epstein won't have to turn down his old manager after all.

The Cubs weren't expected to hire former Red Sox manager Terry Francona, but he officially pulled his name out of consideration. He said he needs time to "re-energize."

QUARTERBACK CARNAGE

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

Wide receivers are the toddlers of the fantasy world. They can't do anything for themselves and like to complain a lot.

So after a week that saw a fistful of quarterbacks go down with injuries, there's reason for concern. After all, a wideout is worthless if his quarterback can't get him the ball. Should we be selling?

Bad for Bowe

With Matt Cassel done for the year, the Chiefs are turning to Tyler Palko. Yikes. Palko is a former undrafted free agent, possesses a weak arm and has poor size. These are all major red flags for an offense that was already skewed toward the run. Sell Dwayne Bowe while you can, as his talent can't overcome this.

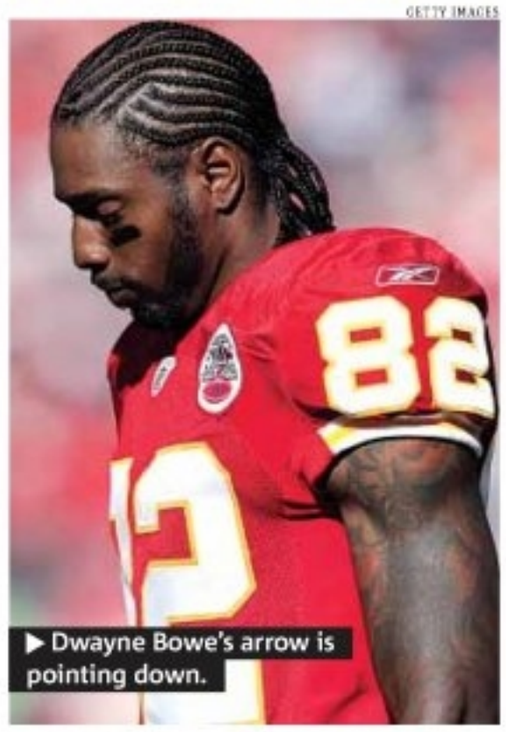
Trojan horse

Before we write off Matt Leinart, let's remember his credentials coming out of college. He's got a big arm and he's willing to use it. Considering Andre Johnson is perhaps the best all-around receiver in the league, he'll sustain high-end WR2 value.

Vinsanity

If Vince Young ends up starting in place of Michael Vick, look for lots of rollouts and short passes underneath. Give Brent Celek a boost, but don't expect DeSean Jackson to finally break out. Young figures to play it conservative.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Dwayne Bowe's arrow is pointing down.

NFL news

Murray's job

▶ DeMarco Murray has earned the starting job and he'll keep it. Even though Felix Jones (ankle) is nearly healthy, the Cowboys have confirmed Murray will remain the workhorse. The rookie will sustain RB1 value the rest of the way.

Denarius Moore

▶ WR, Raiders
Freakish talent, a full-time starting role and a quarterback not afraid to chuck it deep. Moore is for real.

Lance Ball

▶ RB, Broncos
Knowshon Moreno (knee) is done for the year and the Broncos run the ball 800 times per game.

Vince Young

Michael Vick is shaky for this week and won't push it once the Eagles are mathematically eliminated. Young runs.

NFL targets

The hierarchy at wideout is always changing. These three are suddenly very reliable WR2/3 bets:

1 Antonio Brown, WR, PIT — Hines Ward has been demoted, locking Brown into most two-wide sets. He's an elite playmaker.

2 Brandon Lloyd, WR, STL — With Tim Tebow, Lloyd would have been a bust. With Sam Bradford/Josh McDaniels, he's a beast.

3 Victor Cruz, WR, NYG — Playing out of the slot, Cruz has become Eli Manning's favorite target in key situations.

Maddon wins award

Joe Maddon won his second AL Manager of the Year award yesterday.

The Rays overcame a nine-game deficit on Sept. 2 and edged the Red Sox for the AL Wild Card on the final day. They won 91 games with a roster that had lost stars Carlos Pena, Carl Crawford and Matt Garza.

"I like to think of it as a validation of the Rays' way of doing things," Maddon said on a conference call.

Maddon won with 26 first-place votes. Detroit's Jim Leyland was second and the Rangers' Ron Washington finished third. LARRY FLEISHER

Wright hopes for Reyes

We know the Marlins want Jose Reyes and now we know his teammate David Wright does as well.

We just don't know if the Mets want him.

Wright talked to the media yesterday as the Mets announced their plans for the team's 50th anniversay celebrations at Citi Field in 2012.

"Hopefully, the organization values him the way that I value him," Wright said. "I think he's one of the premier players in baseball. I think that what he brings to the team is more than just what you see on the field." METRO
